HUANG-PEI AMMUNITION DEPOT
(See Figure 11)I. GENERAL

COMMENTS

Comparative photography has revealed that the probable training platforms which are located throughout the Huang-pei Military Complex have not changes in numbers or location [redacted] These platforms are arranged in groups of twelve with a long platform/building located in line with or across from them. These probable training platforms could possibly be associated with airborne training. They could also be, however, some device for training ground forces.

25X1

As a supplement to this report two examples have been included which show the same type of probable training platform being utilized in other military installations (see Figures 13 and 14). A map is included which indicates the general geographic proximity of these installations to one another (see Figure 12).

Comparative coverage of the Huang-pei Military Complex has not revealed artillery or pieces of equipment in any of the open areas within the various installations. The presence of an anti-tank division or any other type of artillery unit cannot be verified from available photographic coverage.
